while Harvey was editor of Coin, a paper which he published in Chicago. Harvey, in talking to one of his partners, took exception to the want of punctuation in the paper. 'There isn't enough punctuation,' he complained, 'and Coin doesn't look right without it. There ought to be a comma once in so often, then so often a colon, and all the rest. Don't you think so?' he wound

'I do, indeed,' heartily replied the partner, who was not wholly devoid of humor. 'That's a great idea of yours, Harvey. If I were you,' he suggested. 'I'd draw up a rule to that effect.'

"Harvey thought it over, and the thought commended itself. The next day, therefore, a rule reading somewhat as follows was posted in the ofoffice that articles appearing in the mns of this paper must be punctuated as follows: Every 12 words shall ery five lines a period; exclamation and question marks may be used as heretofore. The employees of this paper will please observe this order." -- New York

A Failure In Coopering.

A certain man who was once a prominent Kentucky politician was more a demagogue than a statesman. He was, according to Short Stories, in the habit of boasting that his father was a cooper in an obscure town in the state-that he was "one of the people" and didn't belong to the "kid gloved aristocracy.'
